

Lead Generation Brief: UK/EU Property Management Market

Assigned to: _____ Duration: 4 weeks Reports to: _____ Start date: _____

1. Read this first — your real objective

We do not have a product to sell yet. So your job is not to close deals.

Your job is to build a qualified prospect database of 300 property management companies, and book 20 of them into research interviews.

This matters because:

- The research team needs those 20 interviews. Without them, the whole product decision is guesswork.
- The database you build now becomes our sales pipeline the day the product is ready.
- A “research interview” gets a reply rate 5–10x higher than a sales pitch, because you are asking for their opinion, not their money. You will learn how to reach these people while the door is still open.

Never pitch a product in these conversations. If you pitch, we lose the honest answers, and the research becomes worthless.

2. Who we are targeting (ICP)

Primary — UK and Ireland

Criteria	Target
Company type	Residential property management / lettings agency / build-to-rent operator
Portfolio size	50–2,000 units under management
Employees	5–100
Software today	Arthur, Reapit, Fixflo, Yardi Breeze, Alto, Jupix, or spreadsheets
Geography	UK first, then Ireland

Secondary — Netherlands, Germany, Nordics (only after UK list is complete)

Job titles to target, in priority order:

1. Operations Director / Head of Operations — feels the pain daily, usually the champion
2. Managing Director / Owner — signs off in companies under 30 people
3. Head of Property Management / Lettings Director
4. Head of Maintenance / Repairs Manager — best contact for the maintenance product

Do NOT target: estate agents doing only sales, single-property landlords, holiday-let managers, commercial-only firms, companies over 5,000 units (enterprise, wrong sales motion for now).

3. Where to find them

Source	What you get	Cost
LinkedIn Sales Navigator	Best source. Filter by industry + headcount + geography + title	~£80/mo
ARLA Propertymark member directory	Verified UK letting agents	Free

NRLA (National Residential Landlords Association)	Landlords and managing agents	Free
The Property Ombudsman / PRS register	Registered agents by area	Free
Companies House	SIC code 68320 (management of real estate on a fee or contract basis)	Free
Rightmove / Zoopla agent pages	Local agents by postcode, with lettings volume visible	Free
Competitor case study pages	Arthur, Fixflo, Plentific — they publish their own customers	Free
LinkedIn groups + property forums	People complaining about their software = warm leads	Free
Property trade events (Propertymark Conference, UK PropTech)	Attendee/speaker lists	Free

Start with Companies House SIC 68320 filtered by employee count. It is free, comprehensive, and gives you registered addresses to match against LinkedIn.

4. Data to collect for each company

Build one spreadsheet. These exact columns:

Column	Notes
Company name
Website
Country / city
Estimated units managed	From their website “we manage X properties” or Rightmove listing count
Employee count	LinkedIn
Contact name
Job title
LinkedIn profile URL
Email	Verified only — see rules below
Phone	Company switchboard is fine
Current software	From job ads, case studies, LinkedIn skills, or their careers page
Signal / trigger	Recent funding, hiring ops staff, expansion, public complaint about software
Source	Where you found them
Status	Not contacted / Contacted / Replied / Booked / Declined
Date last contacted
Notes

“Current software” is the highest-value column. If we know a company runs Arthur, our whole message can speak to that. Find it in job adverts (“experience with Arthur Online required”) — this works remarkably well.

5. Compliance — read carefully, this is not optional

We are contacting people in the UK and EU. Getting this wrong risks fines and, worse, our domain being blacklisted.

UK (GDPR + PECR): - Limited companies, LLPs and public bodies: you may send B2B email without prior consent, but every email must identify us and include a clear opt-out. - Sole traders and unincorporated partnerships are treated as individuals — they need consent. Many small letting agents are sole traders. Check the company structure on Companies House before emailing. - Record a legitimate interest assessment: why we believe this person would reasonably expect contact. - Honour any opt-out within days, permanently. Keep a suppression list.

Germany: cold commercial email is effectively prohibited without prior express consent, including B2B, under §7 UWG. Do not cold-email German prospects. Use LinkedIn or phone instead.

Netherlands, Nordics: stricter than UK. Get sign-off before emailing.

Universal rules: - Never buy a scraped email list. Verify every address (Hunter.io, NeverBounce). - No misleading subject lines, no fake “Re:” or “Fwd:”. - Maximum 2 follow-ups, then stop. Someone who ignores you three times is not a lead. - Warm the sending domain for 3 weeks before volume sending. Use a separate domain from our main one so a spam complaint doesn’t damage our primary email.

Flag to your manager before sending anything to a country not listed above.

6. The outreach approach

Channel priority: LinkedIn first, then email, then phone. LinkedIn gets better response and has fewer legal constraints.

Message principles: - Ask for their expertise, not their time. “I’d value your view” beats “can I have 30 minutes”. - Be specific about who you are and why them. Generic = deleted. - Offer something real: a £40 voucher and a copy of the findings. - Keep it under 90 words. - Never mention a product, a demo, or pricing.

Suggested sequence per prospect (over 12 days):

1. Day 1 — LinkedIn connection request with a short note
2. Day 3 — If accepted: message asking for the research conversation
3. Day 6 — Email (only if legally permitted for that entity type)
4. Day 12 — One final short follow-up, then mark as declined and stop

Write 3 different message versions and test them. Track which gets replies. Report the winner.

7. Weekly targets

Week	Prospects added	Contacts made	Interviews booked
1	100	30	2
2	100	80	6
3	60	80	7
4	40	60	5
Total	300	250	20

If you are badly behind after week 2, do not just send more messages — the message is probably wrong. Raise it at the check-in so we can change the approach.

8. Final deliverable

1. The prospect database — 300 companies, all columns filled, deduplicated, clean.
2. 20 booked interviews, calendared and handed to the research team.
3. Outreach performance report: messages sent per channel, open rate, reply rate, positive reply rate, booking rate. Broken down by message version and by job title.
4. What we learned about reaching this market — 1 page. Which channel works, which titles reply, which sources produced the best-fit companies, what objections came up repeatedly.
5. Suppression list — everyone who opted out. Maintained permanently.

9. What good looks like

- 300 rows with verified data, not 800 rows of guesses. One bad email address damages our sender reputation more than one good lead helps.
- Interviews actually held, not just booked — chase and confirm the day before.
- You can tell us which message worked and why, with numbers.
- Zero compliance incidents.

Weekly check-in: 30 minutes, end of each week. Numbers, blockers, what you'd change.

10. Tools to request

- LinkedIn Sales Navigator (~£80/month) — essential
- Hunter.io or Apollo for email finding and verification (~£40/month)
- A separate sending domain plus warm-up tool (Instantly, Smartlead) (~£30/month)
- Google Sheets or Airtable for the database
- Calendly for booking

Approximate total: £150-200/month. Get approval before purchasing.
